Last night's American Music Awards marked the return of a few troubled pop stars — namely Ariana Grande (<http://www.pixable.com/article-tag/ariana-grande>) and Justin Bieber (<http://www.pixable.com/article-tag/justin-bieber>) – as they shimmy their way back into our good graces. Ariana has made few appearances since “donutgate (<http://www.pixable.com/article/ariana-grande-apology-video-22639>)” but she made a big return to the stage last night for the first TV performance of her new single “Focus.”

Ariana slayed her performance, changed her hair up (<http://www.pixable.com/article/ariana-grandes-hair-focus-photos-27339>) a few times, and won the award for Favorite Female Artist – Pop/Rock, further cementing that we're all pretty forgiving of a few licked donuts. But the best part, hands down, of Ariana's big night was her grandmother.

Yes, Ariana brought her “Nonna” with her to the show and she is the cutest thing on the planet. Nonna Grande was way cuter than any backup dancer or b-list celeb that Ariana could’ve brought as a date, and I’m officially declaring her our new national treasure.

Ariana didn't seem like she was expecting to win, and she gave an adorable and humbled speech in which she thanked Nonna G. She said: "I think I owe a lot of this to my Nonna who made sure to remind me that she voted. She goes, 'Ariana, I went on the computer. I voted, so I think you'll win.'" UGH. Too cute.
